

Board Games & Puzzles for Young Learners

Board Games & Puzzles · Practice Test · 15 Questions

1. Which classic board game is often used to teach basic addition and subtraction skills through its gameplay mechanics?

- A) Monopoly
- B) Checkers
- C) Snakes and Ladders
- D) Chess

2. What is the primary objective in the board game 'Connect 4'?

- A) To build a tower of four discs
- B) To get four of your coloured discs in a row, horizontally, vertically, or diagonally
- C) To capture all of your opponent's pieces
- D) To reach the end of the board first

3. In a standard jigsaw puzzle, what is the general term for the small interlocking pieces that form the image?

- A) Sections
- B) Segments
- C) Tiles
- D) Fragments

4. Which of these board games is primarily a strategy game that involves moving pieces across a grid and capturing the opponent's King?

- A) Scrabble
- B) Clue
- C) Chess
- D) Operation

5. What fundamental mathematical concept is often reinforced by playing the board game 'Sudoku'?

- A) Probability
- B) Geometry
- C) Number Placement and Logic
- D) Measurement

6. In the game 'Operation', players must carefully remove various 'ailments' from a patient without touching the sides of the opening. What skill does this game primarily test?

- A) Speed reading
- B) Fine motor skills and steady hands
- C) Memory recall
- D) Problem-solving under pressure

7. Which popular word-building board game requires players to form words on a grid using letter tiles, earning points based on letter values and board bonuses?

- A) Battleship
- B) Scrabble
- C) Risk
- D) Sorry!

8. What type of puzzle typically involves arranging a set of numbered tiles in a specific order within a grid, usually with one empty space?

- A) Crossword puzzle
- B) Word search
- C) Sliding tile puzzle
- D) Mazes

9. In the game 'Dominoes', players match numbers or symbols on the ends of rectangular tiles. What is the basic principle of play?

- A) Matching colours
- B) Building a chain of matching ends
- C) Capturing opponent's pieces
- D) Completing a pattern

10. Which board game is known for its element of deduction, where players try to identify a murderer, the weapon used, and the location of the crime?

- A) Settlers of Catan
- B) Ticket to Ride
- C) Clue
- D) Candy Land

11. What is the main objective of the board game 'Checkers' (also known as Draughts)?

- A) To build the longest road
- B) To capture all of your opponent's pieces
- C) To score the most points by placing words
- D) To solve a mystery

12. Many early childhood puzzles use shapes that need to be fitted into corresponding cut-out spaces. What cognitive skill do these 'shape sorter' puzzles help develop?

- A) Rhythm and timing
- B) Spatial reasoning and shape recognition
- C) Auditory processing
- D) Creative writing

13. The board game 'Sequence' involves placing chips on a board to form rows of five. What is a key element used to determine where you can place your chip?

- A) Rolling dice
- B) Drawing and playing cards matching board spaces
- C) Answering trivia questions
- D) Spinning a spinner

14. What foundational skill does a simple 'matching pairs' card game, like 'Memory', help children develop?

- A) Public speaking
- B) Visual memory and concentration
- C) Complex problem-solving
- D) Advanced arithmetic

15. In the game 'Battleship', players try to guess the location of their opponent's hidden ships. What type of game is this fundamentally?

- A) Cooperative game
- B) Resource management game
- C) Deduction and strategy game
- D) Party game